Corps sets July 12, 13 meetings to hear stakeholders', public's recreation area modernization topics, issues

Boise, Idaho -- Project operations and natural resources officials from the Walla Walla District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, will conduct workshops tomorrow (July 12) concerning modernization of Lucky Peak Lake facilities, Lewis-Clark bicentennial initiatives and visitor centers.

Agencies and stakeholders can meet with Corps members at the first workshop, from 2-4 p.m., at the Idaho Dept. of Fish and Game Office, 600 South Walnut Street, Boise. Another workshop for the general public is set for 6:30-8:30 p.m., also July 12, at the same location. Corps officials are interested in obtaining broad input of ideas and invites recommendations which are important for future planning.

For those who are unable to attend these workshops, an open house has been set for Thursday, July 13 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Corps members will be available at the Lucky Peak Project Office for public comment. For more information regarding the workshops and open house call Lucky Peak Operations Manager Dave Brownell at (208) 343-0671.
